(24th Sunday in Ordinary Time)

Sunday Reflection

“Lord, how often must I forgive my brother if he wrongs me?”

Rabbi Leo Beck, a German scholar who took on the leadership of German Jews in Hitler’s time, is a fine example of forgiveness. Many of his family and friend died in the Holocaust and somehow, he managed to conquer resentment. He, himself, was five times arrested, and finally sent to a concentration camp, where he served on the convicts’ committee of management. On the very day he was to have been shot, the Russian troops arrived. Beck could have escaped at once, but stayed behind to argue with the Russians, in order to persuade them to spare the lives of the German camp-guards. The Russians decided that the camp-guards should be handed over to the inmates. Beck then argued with the inmates and managed to persuade them not to take their feelings of vengeance out on the camp-guards. Later on, he went to the USA and worked hard for the Council of Christians and Jews in the search for forgiveness and reconciliation. Here was a man that forgave seventy-seven times and more.
