Reflection: 'Who do the crowds say I am?'

Alfred Noble, from Sweden, invented dynamite. As a result, he became rich and famous. However, fame and fortune did not bring him happiness. He had never married and all his life he had been plagued by ill-health.

One morning, late in life, he woke up and read his own obituary in the newspaper. It had been a mistake by a journalist. He was shocked by what he read. The world saw him merely as the 'dynamite kid'. None of his true aims and ambitions were mentioned in the obituary: his desire to break down barriers of prejudice and misunderstanding, to unite people, to better the quality of human life, and so on. Then and there he made a decision to take immediate action to let the world know what his true ideals and aims were. He set up five prizes that would be awarded to men and women who had made outstanding contributions to mankind in five areas: physics, chemistry, medicine, literature and peace. This is how he wished to be remembered.

How did Christ wish to be remembered? How do you wish to be remembered?

A Sobering Prayer

Lord, often we dream of being rich and famous like sport stars and musicians. Help us to realise that their extravagant lifestyles are superficial and do not bring real happiness or peace of mind. Popularity is both fickle and transient and often leads to destructive behaviour. Keep us humble so that we may model our lives on the way of Jesus and so ensure that our names are written in the book of heaven. Amen.

Drumlane Pilgrimage of Hope: Drumlane Abbey a very important religious heritage site located in our parish has been chosen as one of the regional diocesan centres of the Jubilee Year of Hope 2025.
